YEAR 11 MODERN HISTORY SEMINARS
Wednesday 7 May 2003 and Tuesday 13 May 2003
Brisbane Girls' Grammar School, Gregory Terrace, Brisbane

Schools choose to attend either the morning or afternoon session on either 7 May or 13 May. In each session there are two presentations, as follows:

GERMANY IN THE 1930s – THE NAZI EXPERIENCE

Brian Hoeppe, QUT

Brian's presentation will explore the ways in which the Nazi phenomenon appealed to diverse needs among German people, exploiting deep fears and aspirations. The seminar will ask whether this has significance for understanding our own lives and society.

'THIRTEEN DAYS' - THE COLD WAR, FILM AND HISTORY

Kevin McAlinden, Head of History, Loreto College

" 'Thirteen Days' is likely to be the one film about the Cuban Missile Crisis from which at least a generation of students will learn about the crisis. They should have warned us. Its lessons are dangerous to your health." Philip Brenner, George Washington University.

Employing close scrutiny of extracts from the film, Kevin will explore Philip Brenner's provocative claim, raising issues about history and Hollywood.

MORNING SESSION – 9.30AM to 11.45AM

AFTERNOON SESSION – 12.30PM to 2.45PM

COST: $5.50 per student [includes booklet of seminar materials]. Price includes GST.

YEAR 12 MODERN HISTORY SEMINARS

Thursday 31 July 2003

Brisbane Girls' Grammar School, Gregory Terrace, Brisbane

Schools choose to attend either the morning or afternoon session.

In each session there are two presentations, as follows:

GLOBALISATION – DELIGHTS AND DESPAIR?

Brian Hoepper

Brian is a well-known academic, teacher and author in history education. He has written research papers on Globalisation for the Discovering Democracy Project and the Queensland Schools Authority. His presentation will focus on social, cultural and economic aspects of the processes of globalisation that are continuing to transform the lives of people around the world. The presentation will make links with the cultural/media experiences of young Australians.

THREATS, TERROR & AUSTRALIA'S FUTURE

Olivia Walton

In 1995, Olivia topped the graduating class at the Australian Defence Academy, and was awarded the RSL Sword of Honour for Leadership and the Commander-in-Chief's Medal for outstanding overall performance. In 1997 she was the Young Australian of the Year for the ACT. Olivia holds an Honours degree in History and a Master of Teaching. Her presentation will focus on the ways in which Australia's relations with the world have been shaped by various fears and threats, including the current fear of global terrorism. She will draw on her current work on a chapter in a forthcoming history textbook.

Report on the Professional Development Afternoon 12 March

It was great to see so many people attending the first Professional Development Afternoon for 2003. Over 60 teachers turned up on a wet and murky afternoon to attend sessions on the Trial Pilot Syllabuses in Ancient and Modern History. By the end of the afternoon it was encouraging to see so many whose fears had been allayed and who were looking enthusiastically toward the implementation of the new syllabus. Special thanks must go to the presenters: Kevin McAlinden, who chaired the Modern History session, Susan Hinton, Deborah Holland, Terry Gallagher and Bryan Maloney. The Ancient History panel was ably presented by Kay Bishop, Jan Clarke and Jason Sharland.

FOUND: At the end of the afternoon TWO umbrellas were found. If you're missing one please contact: janchristopher@email.com

Take up the opportunities offered!!*

National Archaeology Week - Queensland Facts and Events

What is National Archaeology Week?

Many people are interested in archaeology and enjoy learning about the past but few are aware of the fascinating archaeology that can be found right here in Australia! This year will see the launch of National Archaeology Week, the primary focus of which is to increase public awareness of Australian archaeology and the work of Australian archaeologists both at home and abroad, and to promote the importance of protecting Australia's unique archaeological heritage.

National Archaeology Week is being held from 11 to 18 May 2003 and will involve a nationwide program of events and activities including public lectures, seminars, exhibits, demonstration excavations and displays. Working groups comprising enthusiastic consultant, public, academic, museum and government archaeologists in each state have developed an exciting program of events.

Currumbin Sanctuary releases wildlife CD ROMs

Currumbin Wildlife Sanctuary has just released an exciting series of curriculum-based educational CD-ROMs which take a unique, interactive approach to learning about the Australian environment.

The series of five CD-ROMS combines stunning wildlife photography and video segments to bring a diversity of landscapes, flora and fauna to life.

The series covers Australian Rainforests, Australian Forests, Australian Woodlands, Australian Deserts and Australian Aquatic Environments.

Currumbin Wildlife Sanctuary on the Gold Coast is not only home to one of the largest collections of native wildlife, but also offers a range of exciting hands-on education programs for pre-schoolers through to tertiary students.

The Sanctuary's innovative approach to environmental education is translated to the CD-Rom's fun and interactive activities, introduced by Wildlife Officer Adam Bean.

Government control of textbooks in...Italy

The following correspondence demonstrates that practices that you may have thought limited to countries like Japan and China in fact occur in Italy too.

Department of Modern History, 13 January 2003,

Professor David Carment

President, AHA,
c/- Secretariat,
Macquarie University
North Ryde, 2109

Dear David,

You may know that a few weeks ago the Parliamentary Culture committee of the Italian Parliament called upon its Ministry of Education to exercise direct control over history texts used in Italian Schools. The aim was to remove so-called left-wing and Marxists interpretations from these texts.

This move has been strongly opposed by Italian academics led by Professor Umberto Eco, Lucio Villari and Franco Cardini. A petition is circulating on the Freedom and Justice website which has received support from historians in Italy, Great Britain, France, Germany and the U.S.A.

I write to request that the executive of the AHA join colleagues around the world in protesting about the Italian government's attempt to distort and censor history. I would also ask that all AHA members be informed of this matter and asked to take immediate action. This is a crucial matter which goes to the hearts of academic freedom. The AHA must take a stand.

George Parsons

Head, Modern History, Macquarie University

(founding secretary A.H.A.)

Just in case you missed it...

King gives three cheers

After a sustained and vicious attack on History teachers (letters 27/1) Jonathon King needs to offer an immediate apology. He accuses History teachers of presenting the wrong content, or teaching badly, of deliberately obscuring the grand "three cheers" history of 19th C Australia, which he calls "mainstream history" and of failing to teach "what actually happened". Wake up Dr King it is 2003. Check the latest textbooks, History Teacher Association journals or the web site of the National History Teaching project before launching into a insulting, ungracious attack on school history teachers. History teachers have advanced well past "Three cheers and what a good job the pioneers did in the 19th century". The Queensland History Teachers Association, for example, supports the national Simpson and his donkey Prize and Federation, Citizenship and Democracy projects but it also offers pedagogical guidance to teachers tackling the lives of colonial children, memorial trees at Eumundi, South Sea Islander and Torres Strait women in WWII, Aboriginal participation in the pastoral industry and other topics in their classrooms that tell more about Australia's past than the so-called great events favoured by Dr King and his few mates in the "Three cheers" school of history. Today's history students win prizes for being able to assemble data, analyze, interpret and articulate controversy across eras, continents and cultures rather than regurgitate names and dates of 19th C Governors, explorers, remitted convicts and pioneers. A bit of research in schools and an apology would be nice..

Dr Max Quanchi

and yes there will be more on the Windshuttle debates in future editions of the newsletter. This will include some handouts for students.

Still looking for a Years 8 to 10 SOSE/History Work Program?

A program with History topics mapped against the Queensland Studies of Society and Environment core learning outcomes was published in The History Teacher in February 2000. It can be found electronically inside the 2000 edition of The Australian History Teacher, the journal of the History Teachers' Association of Australia (HTAA.)

➔ Go to the LINKS section of the QHTA website, select the first link, to AFSSSE, then Member Associations, then History Teachers' Association of Australia. Scroll down until you see The Australian History Teacher.

The Queensland School Curriculum Council (now the QSA) website also has a course of study in History available. www.qscc.qld.edu.au

Seen the fliers in your school inviting schools to ADOPT A RIVER...?

It relates to a Riverfestival to be held 29 Aug – 7 Sept. An initiative of the Brisbane City Council in partnership with Channel Nine and the Queensland Government it could provide an incentive to devise units related to the history of the environment, especially in Years 8-9 SOSE.

A Riversymposium will be held in Brisbane between Tuesday 2 and Friday 5 September and a public Hypothetical is part of the program. The introduction of both secondary school and university riverdebates prior to the 2003 Hypothetical is planned to encourage student participation in this event.
